Leave a comment below Q: Should I scale my child div to fill an entire parent div? I have a div that holds all the content of my website. Within this div, I have a div for each section of the website. However, when the child section's content changes, the width of the parent div is no longer sufficient to contain the children. This works fine if the content within a section is relatively narrow, but I'm wondering what the best practice is for the case where the section's content could be relatively wide. Should I do something like this? 2d92ce491b
