I found this solution but I'm wondering if it would work. Since the element needs a file type to work, we would not get any input unless the browser knows the file is a file. I imagine that it would require a javascript solution that would match the behavior of the input tag instead of the input type, but I don't know if it's possible. Any help is appreciated! A: You are correct that this requires some JavaScript, but this is how I solved the problem. First I've modified Bootstrap's .input-group to use my .file-field class instead of the built in input[type=file]: .input-group-file { display: flex; align-items: stretch; justify-content: space-between; flex-flow: column; width: 100%; I've then created my own file input field with styling: .file-field { flex-basis: 100%; margin: 0; display: block; height: 38px; border: 1px solid rgba(0,0,0,0.3); border-radius: 3px; font-size: 14px; transition: border 0.2s linear; opacity: 0; filter: alpha(opacity=0); overflow: hidden; padding-left: 5px; padding-right: 5px; background-color: transparent; background-image: none; background-position: 0
