Category:French youth culture Category:Youth in France Category:French words and phrases I went on a 100 mile run. So I'm not really mad about the outcome. It sucked, but that's a good thing, right?

So it's all good. However, I'm mad because I thought I had written a blog post. That pissed me off. I'm not going to go into details about my run, but basically I wrote the blog post about my goal not to be in a car. Then I went out and had a lovely dinner with my parents and a great glass of wine. What does that remind me of? It's like...I'm having a glass of wine. I have to be careful with myself. I've been having a glass of wine every night with my dinner, and I'm trying to eat healthier. Now I've blown the whole goal. I don't have the willpower to not drink. Well, at least I know I'm not supposed to. I don't have a drinking problem, but I would like to not be addicted to wine. And I really would love to drink more vegetables. But I might just have to suck it up and get a glass of wine. Better to drink it and move on, than have a real problem. Why do I feel this way? Apparently, some people have a "high-ammonia diet". Ammonia is what they eat with the meal. According to Wikipedia, some people tend to have a high ammonia diet, but I'm not on that diet. Ammonia is normally found in a protein or other meat based diet. On a plant-based diet, we do not really eat a lot of protein. So why do some people have such high levels of ammonia? According to Dr. David Perlmutter, MD. Ph.D., author of Grain Brain, there are at least
