What's New in the PasteList?

PasteList is a tool that extends your Windows clipboard by combining a group of items into one large text item. With PasteList, you can quickly select your desired items, and as soon as you press Alt+V, they will be pasted in the clipboard or in any text document. The idea behind PasteList is to reduce the hassle of copying/pasting thousands of items manually, and it succeeds in this respect. Although it can't group images, pictures, audio and more together, it has some limitations, but we think that you should still have a chance to benefit from the tool. Using PasteList you can: * Group items into separate files with more than one original item. * Select some items, Ctrl+C them, and paste them directly in one click. * Select more than one text in a larger list and copy the selected items, then paste them in order. * Put any file type in any group, even images, music and video files.
