and functional analysis of the small GTPases of the rab GTPase family: RaIGTPase-activating protein, Rak and Rheb. Ras-related proteins constitute a family of small GTPases which are important regulators of growth and proliferation. From a biochemical perspective, these proteins constitute a logical point of convergence for signal transduction pathways that control these functions. In this article, we will review recent work that has used an integrated approach to examine the structure and function of these GTPases.Available in the following languages: Supported games: Sapphire is an action/shooter game that puts you in a role of defender of Earth's solar system from alien invasion. Multiple levels with boss battles await you as you fight through hordes of aliens. Don't let them touch the Sun!

Challenges Sapphire is a game that primarily takes the form of arcade, but also has three themed levels: open world, point-and-click and timed. Each of them has a difficulty level: Open world level - no time limit, no puzzles, the maximum difficulty is available from the start. Point-and-click level - time limit and puzzles in a 3D environment, the maximum difficulty is also available from the start. Timed level - time limit, but no puzzles, the maximum difficulty is only available after getting the low score in the point-and-click level. The game is a continuation of King of Hives, a desktop game I've developed and released in December 2013. In that
